Detailed Technical Specifications

GeoStudio 2D and 3D Geotechnical Modelling Software

A) GeoStudio 2D (25 User, 01 Year License)

Numerical analysis tools for two-dimensional simulating conditions at and below the ground surface. From natural soil and rock slopes to dewatering systems or tailings storage facilities to model the conditions needed for better insights into geotechnical projects. The GeoStudio 2D software should include the following modules:

i. SLOPE/W

Limit equilibrium slope stability software for soil and rock slopes, effectively analysing both simple and complex problems for various slip surface shapes, pore water pressure conditions, soil properties, and loading conditions. Analyze almost any slope stability problem that can be encountered in geotechnical, civil, and mining engineering projects.

ii. SEEP/W

Finite element software product for modelling groundwater flow in porous media. Model simple saturated steady-state problems or sophisticated saturated/unsaturated transient analyses with atmospheric coupling at the ground surface.

iii. SIGMA/W

Finite element software product for modelling stress and deformation in soil, rock, and structures. Analyses may range from simple linear elastic simulations to soil-structure interaction problems with nonlinear material models.

iv. CTRAN/W

Finite element software product for modelling solute and gas transfer in porous media. To model simple diffusion-dominated systems through to complex advection-dispersion systems with first-order reactions. Model a vast array of geo-environmental problems involving the movement of dissolved species or gases that originate from either man-made or naturally occurring sources.

v. AIR/W

Finite element software product for modelling air transfer in mine waste and other porous media. To model various scenarios, from simple single-phase air transfer problems to complex coupled air-water systems. It can be coupled with TEMP/W to model forced-convection heat flow and density-dependent airflow. For studying mine closure, acid rock drainage, or gas transfer.

vi. QUAKE/W

Finite element software product for modelling earthquake liquefaction and dynamic loading. Determine the motion and excess pore water pressures arising from earthquake shaking, blasts, or sudden impact loads.

vii. TEMP/W

Finite element software product for modelling heat transfer and phase change in porous media. Analyze simple conduction problems to complex surface energy simulations with cyclical freeze-thaw.

B) GeoStudio 3D (01 User, 01 Year License)

Numerical analysis tools for three-dimensional simulating conditions at and below the ground surface. From natural soil and rock slopes to dewatering systems or tailings storage facilities to model the conditions needed for better insights into geotechnical projects. The GeoStudio 3D software should include the following modules:

i. SLOPE3D

Limit equilibrium capabilities by offering a practical and sophisticated approach for capturing 3D slope failure mechanisms in both soil and rock, given various slip surface shapes, pore water pressure conditions and soil properties.

ii. SEEP3D

Finite element software product for modelling 3D groundwater flow in porous media. Model simple saturated steady-state problems or sophisticated saturated/unsaturated transient analyses using the same comprehensive set of material models and boundary conditions as SEEP/W.

iii. TEMP3D

Analyze 3D heat transfer using the same comprehensive set of material models and boundary conditions as TEMP/W.

iv. AIR3D

Finite element software product for modelling three-dimensional air transfer in mine waste and other porous media. To model various scenarios, from simple single-phase air transfer problems to complex coupled air-water systems. It can be coupled with TEMP3D to model forced-convection heat flow and density-dependent airflow. For studying mine closure, acid rock drainage, or gas transfer.

v. CTRAN3D

Finite element software product for modelling 3D solute and gas transfer in porous media. To model simple diffusion-dominated systems through to complex advection-dispersion systems with first-order reactions. Model a vast array of geo-environmental problems involving the movement of dissolved species or gases that originate from either man-made or naturally occurring sources.
